

A Mickey at U.C.

Students grinned broadly today as they walked across the University of California campus and glanced at the Campanile clock, 180 feet up the 307-foot tower. Looking down on them was a Mickey Mouse face and a three-fingered hand. Campus officials shut off the clock until they could figure how to get the unwanted face off. Police said someone must have gained entrance to the locked building during the night, taken the elevator to the observation floor, climbed over the protective glass shield and lowered himself by ropes to the clock face.
